6/9/69 Chief Complaint:

Insidious onset of feelings of freshman inferiority and paranoia, sophomore apathy, junior-year preoccupation with impending doom 2° to staffing and scut, and, most recently, delusions of suave, sophisticated, senior superiority (manifest by afternoons at the golf course, hepatomegaly, and the Red-Carpet syndrome).

Present Illness:

In the beginning there was histology, and the course was without form and void, and darkness fell upon the face of the class. And the Administration said, "Let there be Cell Biology." And the darkness deepened. Then summer came, and there was much rejoicing. But Lo! The Administration proclaimed, "Let there be the Sophomore Year." And a hush fell over the class, and the voice of the rabbit was heard throughout the year. And times were sad. And that year passed, and the lambs were led into the pastures of the clinicians. And there was much mourning and wailing, like a woman bringing forth child at MCGH. And there was nausea, vomiting, and starting IV's. But Lo! From out of the wilderness came the voices of medicine men - staph-men who proclaimed on high, "Verily, we say unto you, 'We are most wise, we are most just, and we shall mete out labor to the very last one of you." And eight papers were the workups, infinite were the lab tests, and "Scut" was on the lips of each clerk. And then the Administration said, "Let there be the Senior Year," and there was gaiety, revelry, debauchery, orgies, and the wine flowed like water. Then came Judgment Day - March 10. But Spring was our Limbo and June our Deliverance.

TO THE I.U. SCHOOL OF MEDICINE GRADUATES OF 1969

Your four years at the School of Medicine have been four of the most important years in the history of medical education in Indiana. We have planned and begun the implementation of a new medical curriculum. We have planned and begun the implementation of the Indiana Program for Statewide Medical Education. We have begun several of the construction projects which will give our school a system of university hospitals unequalled in the nation.

You have been involved with many of these changes and your contributions have given much to their success. The general practice preceptorships have become an established, successful program, largely because you have made it so. The Committee on Opportunities for Negroes in Medical Education is the kind of effort which cannot succeed if it is only a faculty and staff effort. It is succeeding because you have made it succeed.

Many of you--those who will go on to internships and residencies in Indiana--will continue a very close association with the school of Medicine through the Indiana Program. You will find that considerable progress has been made to create the environment of a major medical center in the urban centers of our state. In several of the community hospitals you will renew acquaintances with this year's junior class as they begin participation in the clinical electives program next year. You will find, in effect, that the Indiana Program is eliminating the traditionally abrupt divisions between medical school, graduate medical education, and continuing medical education.

I hope that all of you will continue your associations with your school--we will need you. And to all of you, my best wishes in your medical careers.

MARCH 10, 1969

Case No. 691969

The case for discussion today is that of Perry Anal, a 43-yr-old Caucasian male go-go dancer who was seen in the RW of Marion County General Hospital for the first time on 8/10/68 complaining of rather acute borborygmus, tenesmus, trismus, strabismus, meningismus, and merry x-mas. Physical examination recorded by the crack senior (extern) revealed a mass in the neck, unilateral right gynecomastia, and 3+ pitting edema surrounding a Peyronie's plaque. A diagnosis of acute gonococcal quinsy and confirmed, and the patient was treated with IM Metubine and given a 10-day course of Premarin cream. He was released that night, MHB with PHC.

The patient was next seen in the ER at Robert Long Hospital on 10/8/68 bleeding profusely from a punctate stab wound in the left posterior flank. Mr. Anal stated that he was just leaving Coleman Hospital, where his wife (a 190-lb. achondroplastic gargoyle and chronic Thalidomide addict) had just delivered a 7-lb. 3-oz. left ankle. He was walking toward his car when he "was attacked by some hamburger running around the parking lot waving a renal biopsy needle and yelling, 'I'm a staffman, I'm a staffman.'" Unfortunately, the assailant's needle found its mark. In the ER, an incision was made and from the wound was withdrawn a 10-cm solid-gold biopsy needle obturator on which was inscribed, "All my love, Stuart." A Band-Aid was applied and, after appropriate diagnostic procedures (including Schiøtz tonometry and a rectal biopsy) the patient was discharged MHB with PHC.

The next and final episode occurred on 12/31/68 when, after being brought to the MCGH emergency room, the patient was admitted for diagnostic evaluation, possibly even treatment. When first seen, the patient was tachypneic, diaphoretic, and had a blood pressure of 60/80. The medicine resident noted marked onychogryposis and elevated nasal eosinophils. IV fluids were started and the extern was told to pass an N-G tube, anchor a Foley, and admit the patient.

PRESENT ILLNESS:

The patient's present illness was manifest by progressive feelings of weakness, dyspnea, and a "bloating of the humors of the abdomen." Just prior to admission, the patient had been watching a 1938 Mickey Rooney movie when he palpitated, felt dizzy, and had a sensation that "all my bodily fluids were flowing down into my bladder and gentle (sic) parts." He fainted and was brought to the ER.

PAST MEDICAL HISTORY

Positive, in that the patient had had the normal childhood diseases, including tetanus, scurvy, the plague, anthrax, and two psychotic episodes in which he was found in his backyard, salivating and practicing bestiality on his his hyperhidrotic squirrel Sidney, who lived in the oaks. He had chronically suffered from purulent, pustular pigmented, pearly penile papules.

REVIEW OF SYSTEMS

Neuropsychiatric: Patient stated that he had sought psychiatric help recently, for what was found to be acute, inappropriate affect. However, he discontinued his own therapy, as he'd never been treated by anyone so grosz.

HEENT: Patient complained of occasional unilateral scotomata, intermittent rhinophyma, and infrequent sore throats.

Chest: Symptoms related to the chest were negative except for occasional hemoptysis, a chronic cough, and a history of a right middle lobectomy.

Heart: Occasional micturational palpitations were noted by the patient.

GU: Patient had recently noted increased frequency and dysuria. Also, during the ten days prior to admission, he had experienced about 73 acute priapistic crises.

FAMILY HISTORY

The patient's father, a transvestite Presbyterian minister, expired one night when, during an uncinate fit, he fractured his buffalo hump, everted a Zenker's diverticulum, aspirated, and died. The patient had 10 siblings, 4 male, 5 female, 1 borderline--all living and well except one sister (the former Miss Infra Anal, who married Bob Fissure to become Mrs. Infra Anal Fissure). She succumbed age 32 after taking an overdose of testosterone. She evidently had an episode of acute vulvar atrophy and died of fulminating penis envy.

The patient's mother is living and well, although there is history of a canal of Nuck cyst. She has no history of ASHD, RHD, CHF, SOB, DOE, HNP, PID, COPD, URI, HA, or TBNA.

The patient's daughter was well until age 19 when she suffered concomitant lower abdominal distress and human chorionic gonadotropinuria. This was one of the first documented cases of the so-called "Senior Medical Student-Freshman Nurse" syndrome, in which an abdominal mass is the direct causative factor in the development of a nuptial mass.

SOCIAL HISTORY

The patient worked 20 years as a male go-go dancer in Roscoe's Romper Room, an infamous dive referred to as Charcot's Joint and frequented by hoodlums, street-walkers, radiologists and the like. There, while listening to the sock-it-to-me music of that wild combo, "Chuckie Bumps and the Throckmortons Three," the patient and his fellow dancers would wriggle in their go-go cages and squirt each other with IVP dye.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

Physical examination on the morning after admission revealed a WD, WN, WM of 43, with a #22 Bardex-Foley catheter taped to his right cheek and passing into the right nostril. Remembering the orders he had given to the junior female extern the night before, the resident quickly checked to see where the N-G tube might be. After this situation was corrected, the physical examination was continued and is recorded as follows:

HEENT: Examination of the head revealed marked dolichocephaly, bilateral Parrot's nodes, and obvious Treacher-Collins facies. There was dullness to percussion over Broca's area. Ophthalmoscopic exam of the right eye revealed 8 spirochetes swimming freely in the anterior chamber, two doing the butterfly, and one the Australian crawl. The fundi were essentially normal, except for mild optic atrophy on the right and 3+ papilledema on the left.

Examination of the throat revealed marked nystagmoid movements of a bifid uvula, the rapid component being directed to the right and posteriorly. There were no carotid bruits. There were no carotid pulses. There was a prominent cervical venous hum.

Chest: Right unilateral gynecomastia was noted. The percussive note was uniformly flat, except on the right inferior anterior chest, where it was a clear C-sharp. Auscultation of the right base revealed a few fine, sibilant, moist, musical, crackling, wet, wheezy rales.

Heart: There was no thrill, but there was a grade 0-1/2/vi blowing, mid-diastolic murmur. This was felt to be probably functional, but R/O either congenital or acquired cardiac disease.

Abdomen: Palpation of the liver revealed a positive Christiansen's sign, i.e. it was hanging over the edge of the bed about 1 1/2 inches from the floor. It was non-tender and had the word LAENNEC inscribed on its lateral margin. Kidneys were not palpable, nor were the adrenals or spleen. Pancreas was of normal size and configuration. There was an enterocutaneous fistulous tract in the right lower quadrant. (The patient stated that at about 5:00 that morning he had seen a man wearing a puce-colored gaberdine scrub suit wandering dazedly about the wards, brandishing a DeBakey clamp and muttering, "The King don't care, the King don't care." Evidently the patient had asked for a colostomy and the King took a stab at it.)

Genitalia: Examination of the genitalia showed 2+ hypertrophy of the suspensory ligament of the penis. There was a grade iv/vi dorsal venous hum and a palpable pudendal pulse. Also seen was a midline perineal mass measuring 7 cm by approximately 1 1/2 yds. This was soft, painless, and did transilluminate. There was obvious pruritus scroti. Also, 3+ rectal wheezing was noted, as there was massive aneurysmal dilatation of the rectum, from the internal sphincter to the bulging sacculi of Horner.

Rectal: Rectal examination was prohibited by numerous foreign bodies, and it was decided that immediate evacuation was in order, so the patient was given a microbiology lecture. The foreign bodies expelled included 3 rectal thermometers, a cerumen spoon, 15 finger cots, 5 quarts of barium sulfate, a Hodge's pessary, and a candid 16 mm film clip showing the chairman of a well-known university's orthopedics department on vacation in Hawaii, wearing a pink Paisley sportshirt, love beads, and a shabby beard--while doing the watusi with three polynesian belly dancers at a hippie surf-in. Post-evacuation rectal examination revealed a bifid anus, a small, atretic prostate, and a vestigial culde-sac. Stool was hematest negative; it was also negative for ova and parasites. It was positive, however, for Barr bodies; it was a classic barstool.

Extremities: There were numerous verrucous excrescences along a Simian crease of the right hand. Both arms were normal to auscultation and percussion. There were 17 spider nevi on the left shoulder, below which was a tattoo of a sigmoidoscope bearing the inscription, "God, Mother, and the V.A."

LAB DATA

CBC, sweat chlorides, and fecal fat were all normal. Examination of the urinary sediment showed many bodies of the Ramon y Cajal variety. Path report from the rectal biopsy came back as normal tonsillar tissue; this had been read by one of the department's new staffmen, a 29-yr-old embalming school dropout who needed a part-time job.

Admission chest film showed evidence of an old right middle lobectomy. There were two metallic foreign objects occupying the area of the right middle lobe; one was shaped like a bat, and one like a shoe. (When questioned, the patient admitted that he had known all along that the bat and the shoe had both been in his chest, but he really didn't mind.) KUB showed gaseous large-bowel distention and a midline mass in the lower abdomen; this mass was extraperitoneal and consisted mostly of soft tissue. A post-voiding pneumoencephalogram was normal.

HOSPITAL COURSE

On the second hospital day, the patient experienced severe palpitations, and the extern was sent to get a stat cardiology consult. He was forced to go to the Fessler building, since all the staff at General were over at the Institute of Cardiology avidly observing the effects of ouabain on the intact, perfused urethra of a 3-yr-old gravid pakistani yak. Reaching the catheterization room in Fessler basement, the extern was surprised to find a staffman (an eminent cardiologist known as "Wild Willie") writhing on the fluoroscopy table, flagellating himself with a cardiac catheter and sobbing, "The Carpet's gone, the Carpet's gone." The extern thought there was something fishy about this, but he thought it best to act knoebel and say nothing, so he headed across campus where he finally obtained a consult who ordered a stat EKG and one medium sausage & pepperoni pizza from Pasquale's.

This was delivered, and the extern went back to get a technician to take a cardiogram. The EKG technician, a 73-yr-old WF with galloping consumptive diarrhea (better known as "phthisis ani"), was in crisis and nowhere to be found. The extern had to hunt her all over the hospital, and when he finally found her, had to administer a vigorous pHisoHex scrub. (This entity has recently been written up in a brilliant monograph entitled, "Acute Anal Catarrh in a 73-yr-old EKG Technician--The Hunt-Her, Soap-Her Syndrome."

Upon completion of the EKG (which showed classic reversal of the limb leads), staff rounds were made, and this excitement proved the terminal event for the patient. It seems that the staffman, a brilliant internist known to his friends as "Tricky Dicky," had inadvertently taken a massive toxic overdose of Dulcolax, and while at the bedside, began to have a fulminant cathartic crisis. Fortunately, a quick-minded senior was present, and the staffman was saved; later interviewed about this heroic response to the pathology involved, the extern explained that it was blatantly obvious that SOMEBODY had to plug up the dyke, as it were.

AUTOPSY REPORT

The general picture was that of 1) profound hypovolemia, and 2) metastatic disease. There was only 3.5 cc of blood in the cardiac chambers, and there were multiple ischemic infarcts of the brain, lungs, liver, spleen, GI tract, and kidneys. There were several metastatic "spongy" bodies--involving the ethmoid bone (accounting for the Foster-Kennedy eye signs), the arch of the aorta, the right pectoralis muscle, and the liver. Microscopically, these resembled penile corpus cavernosum tissue.

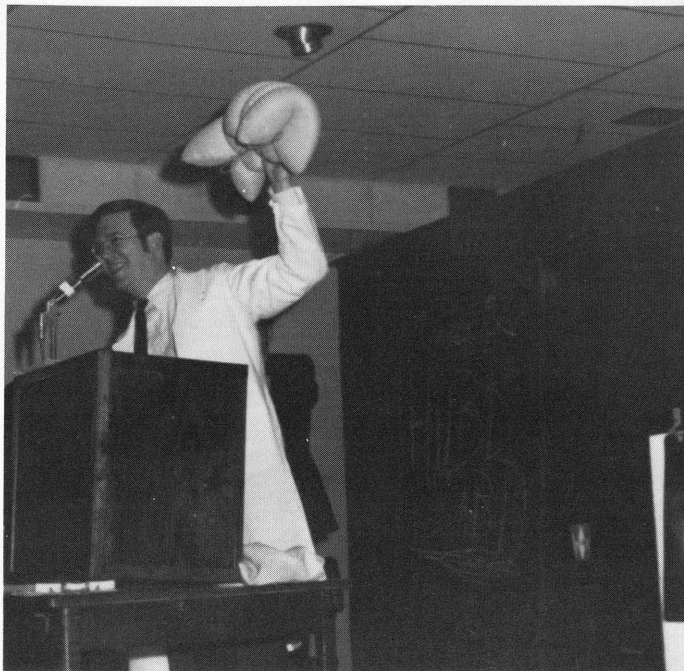

There was a mass in the mid-perineal region which weighed 7,352 grams and contained about 4.5 liters of sero-sanguineous fluid. Grossly and microscopically it resembled corpus cavernosum tissue.

Accordingly, this appears to have been a case of acquired macrophallia with aberrant cavernous tissue (or a cavernous rest) that had a tendency to grow and metastasize. This tumor (a corpus cavernoma) was first reported by Throckmorton in 1963 in the North Korean Archives of Penology, in which this same syndrome occurred in a 13-yr-old oligospermic orangutan.

In summary, then, we have a 43-yr-old male go-go dancer with acquired macropenis and aberrant cavernous tissue which became metastatic. The end-stage disease was manifest by palpitations, dizziness, and hypotensive episodes. There seems to have been a massive mobilization of intravascular blood volume with ensuing irreversible shock, and the terminal event was, alas, an erection.

DIAGNOSIS:

Throckmortonosis Pudendi Hypertrophicorum
